GENERAL COUNSEL SERVICE

Flexibility, certainty and support in a changing corporate world.

The working practices and prospects for businesses in almost every industry sector continue to evolve at pace.

Trying to balance changes in legislation and regulation with both external commercial threats and internal challenges can be an immensely difficult task for companies of any size.

They need to deal with existing issues in a dynamic, cost-effective fashion as well as identifying and addressing emerging themes before they actually present a problem.

That is precisely why a growing number of SMEs and much larger companies have chosen to take advantage of the General Counsel service offered by Bexley Beaumont.

Who we are

Bexley Beaumont is a new breed of boutique law firm which has won a string of prestigious national awards for its ability to provide flexible, innovative and commercial solutions directly to business owners or their in-house legal teams.

The General Counsel service is delivered by an extremely capable group of lawyers, including Nikki Ferguson, Jason Curtis, Hugh Goulbourne and Elizabeth Selby.

In addition to many years working for some of the country's leading corporate law firms, they have amassed decades of experience in-house with leading national and multi-national brands in the manufacturing, retail, food and drink production, leisure and hospitality, logistics and energy sectors.

The team works across the breadth of business output, supporting Operations, Marketing and HR departments, reporting to board level directors and liaising with senior staff across different sites and countries.

What we do

At the heart of the Bexley Beaumont General Counsel service is high quality, clear, pragmatic and strategic advice to businesses.

Household-name clients recognise that Bexley Beaumont adds genuine value to their executive function.

At a time when companies are still grappling with the task of integrating remote working into the office or factory-based models of old, Bexley Beaumont offers great knowledge and reassurance to make the process more straightforward.

The Bexley Beaumont General Counsel team can act either as a standalone General Counsel or simply as a strategic bolster to in-house legal teams.

In addition to relying on the Bexley Beaumont General Counsel team for proactive advice on day-to-day corporate and legal needs, clients also use the service for compliance and legal reviews in order to keep their businesses on-track.

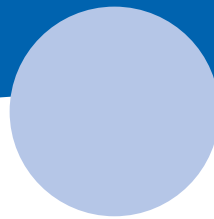

Bexley Beaumont has a proud reputation for quickly immersing itself in the detail of how individual companies operate.

Aware of the need to work to corporate priorities and budgets, it is also flexible on fees - offering day rates and retainer options to suit the requirements of individual clients.

However, one thing which Bexley Beaumont absolutely doesn't compromise on is service quality.

Although clients each have a dedicated lead partner, they know that the support of the rest of the General Counsel team is always on hand.

Clients can also call on the valuable knowledge of the other Bexley Beaumont specialist partners.
